A BUDGET OF GOOD STORIES.

[Told by Flany,]

Mrs Hessey continues in The Blonthly Review her gossippy reminiscences entitled Quaint Memories." I remember my father telling me (she says) of a noted Nonconformist preacher of that day in London who, in his anxiety to arouse his congregation from their inertness, and to move them to personal activity, trenchantly expressed himself thus: 'You won't take any trouble for yourselves, you won't move a finger. In fact, you all think you'll get to heaven by hanging on to my coat-tails. But Tiffe. take care you den't, I'll cheat you, for I'll go in a short jacket. This kind of thing would somewhat astonish a London congregation at the present day.

Dr. Mansel, the late Dean of St. Paul's, told me a story of a meeting he once attatended, where a local dissenting preacher got up and addressed the meeting with, "My friends, you've got these learned English clergy here, and I should just like to ask them a few plain questions. You see, my friends, they make a lot of being able to read different languages, but I am thankful to say I have got my own English Bible, and that's enough for me. What, my friends, do you mean to tell me that you suppose St. Paul road all that gibberish.? No, no, my friends, you may depend upon it St. Paul talked as good honest English as you and I do. Now I just want to ask them a question out of my English Bible, which I'll trouble them to answer. Now, they are always wanting tobaptice the babies. Now, where do they find that in the English Bible ? I read. "Except a man be born again," Now, my friends, it don't say a boy, nor a gal, nor even a coman, much less a babby, but a man must be born again. Now answer me that? Dr Mansel got up and said he could not congratulate himself upon knowing only the English language. On the contrary, he was deeply thankful to feel that he could read the Bible in the language in which it was originally written. But that was neither here nor there, Now, to answer his friend out of his own English Bible, it is written that a woman 'rememberath no more the anguish for ioy that a man is born into the world." Now, my friends, it does not say a boy, it does not say a girl, and it certainly does not say a baby, but a man that is born into the world.'

A cousin of mine went to take duty in a remote hamlet in Lucolnehire. He wasastonished to find a great part of the west end of the church, under the tower, stacked almost to the roof with faggots. He told the clerk, after the service, that he hoped they would be taken away, anything so unseemly could not be allowed in a church. Lor', sir! Muster A—' (mentioning a farmer's name) 'would never hear of they faggots being moved. Why, they do make capital forroting. There's a wonderful lot of rabbits gets in there, and beautiful spor 'tis too, I can tell you. No, 'twould never do to move they faggots! In the winter my cousin would often receive a message from the farmer saying it was so cold that nobody wouldn't go to church to-day, but if Muster Paul liked to come; there'd he no objection to his having service in the kitchen.

There was a curate in the neighbouring hamlet who was anxious to make it a model village. But the people thought him toomoddlesome in some things, and especially resented his wanting to choose their child. ren's names. So-they kept their children back till be went for his holidays, and then brought them all to be christened, and called them the most outlandish names. remember one called her son Maher-shalalhash-baz, and the unfortunate youth went by the name of Baz as long as he lived. He may be alive now; I do not know. But that was not so comical as what occurred to Mr Roberts, a chaplam of Magdalen, who was baptising a gipsy child at Drayton. Fow finer performances than the wicket keeping of A. A. Lilley in the two Test matches this season have been seen. Always one of the best wicket-keepers since he became famous, Lilley has this year seared to greater heights than ever. He is now probably as good-as J. McC. A Lady's First Impressions.

First impressions are proverbially subject to revision, and the lady who is writing for the Empire Review an account of her experience on a Rhodesian farm may modify her views later on. But her story is interesting. We quote from her diary :-

Tucsday, May 11th. - Was awakened very early by the cook-boy with tea. I don't like the look of him at all. He wears. a murderous-looking knife in his belt, a flower in one ear; and has a most ferocious expression. His garments also are conspicuous for the rents in them, so possibly the niggors in clothes have some patent ideas about ventilation. Breakfast very "tinney." Tinned milk, tinned butter, tinned jam, tinned fish, tin cups and saucers, and tin plates. Beginning to feel a bit of a tinney martyr myself. After breakfast studied my surroundings from the verandah. Kopjes everywhere, in assorted sizes. Kopjes to the right, kopjes to the left, kopjes in the front, and kopjes at the back. Wonder if I shall ever got to like See only, deadly sameness at present. Have a vague feeling I might DRESSELHUYS presently die of kopjes on the brain. . The washing up, I discovered, is all done on the ground outside in about two pints of water. Had bully heef, potatoes, bread, and treacle for luncheon. Men all depressed about prospects. Everything seems to be going wrong generally. Horses and mules dying on all sides of 'borso sickness,' Five mules gone in no time at the farm Diseases among the cattle. The first locusts appearing ready to eat the crops. Forty pounds' worth of potatoes washed Malarial fever excelling itself. Set to work to unpack in the afternoon. Felt a little pathetic over my pretty new clothes. Was given to understand Salisbury very gay, and Lshould often ride over. Have not yet seen anything rideable but a donkey. Geoff Langham, who came out with me, the youngest of the men, and bet-away by a cloud-burst a few weeks back.

ter known as 'The Dog,' strolled in with his gun and an air of pathos to match my own; and sat down on my favourite blouse. It did not seem to matter, so I merely asked with an effortat jecularity that made me feel my face was askew: Sport any good?" T've tramped miles, he murmured, and never seen a blooming thing to shoot but a HONGKONG' ICE COMPANY, LTD. bally butterfly.' Somebody shouted 'Scoff, which, being interpreted, means dinner, and we went sadly to more bully beef and potatoes, and broad and treacle, with the TN accordance with the Provisions of addition of soup and tea-one drinks tea an | L No. 104 of the Articles of Association average of five times a day in Rhodonia; the General Managers have this day declar-and the natives are clover enough at making ed an INTERIM DIVIDEND for the half soup out of nothing, which tastes of weree year ended 30th June, 1995, of FOUR than nothing. Felt a little awed by Tomeo's hostile glance | The TRANSFER BOOKS of the Comand huge clasp knife, but assumed a nonchalant air, and looked into a tin. It 31st inst., both days inclusive. contained pearl barley all crawling with insects. Put the lid on again promptly, and shuddered. Asked Tomes if there was anything-te-make a cake or pudding of. He shook his head and stared dehantly. from which I gathered that he did not THE HONGKONG AND KOWLOON understand English, and I might as well address the dirty little cooking stove. Felt afraid to open another tin, and appalled by the dirt generally, so retired to the sittingroom to consider.

Found 'considering' a most unsatisfactory proceeding, so put on a hat and went for a walk. First discovered some niggers pulling mealies with Dick Fortescogenerally known as Dandy Dick '-looking on to see that they did not sleep in holders in the stead of work. Last saw Dick in tall hat July, 1905. and frock coat in Piccadilly. He new wore a prehistoric hat, no collar, an eld fissuel shirt, and boots that defy description. We are great pals, so I stopped for a chat, and was amused to note the perfect serenity and case with which he graced either his present circumstances, or his London ones. When I left him to his 'bossing up of the niggers.' I next ran into my husband superintending the shelling of the mealies. felt inclined to offer him a copper, for he looked more like a tramp than anything white I have seen in Rhodesia. A vague consciousness that in doing so he was probably realising one of his heart's delights, made me heave a little sigh. Personally, I prefer him in his late Hussar uniform.

Friday, May 14th .- Managed to make some pastry this merning. Used a bottle for rolling pin, and rolled the pastry out on the bottom of a tin dish turned upside down-the whole being achieved upon the dining-room table. I also put some yeast in the sun to rise-Tomee's bread being distinc'ly related to cannon balls, and more useful to throw at the 'niggors' heads than

Saturday, May 15th .- My husband drove me to Salisbury to day in the new Cape cart. Ye gods and little fishes i shalt I ever forget it! It took about two hours and a half, and, for the first hour at least, I did little else but wonder which side we should turn over, and in what condition I might expect to find myself on the ground: Cape carts are built high, and they have a hood to keep off the sun and rain, and to be boxed up inside this hood, with one wheel going over boulders or banks a feet or two high, is a most fearsome experience. Looking back later, one's chief wonder is why any one chould want to go to Salisbury at all ! To a newcomer it appears a most gruesome place,

A SHADE OF GOMORRAH

Astrongly-worded letter came to us many from the sight of the travelling populace months ago from a correspondent signing [ it the houses be boarded up or the DAIRY FARM CO., LD., himself Pater, and though it was on a subject that calls for vigorous denunciation we could not then, and cannot now, publish the letter as it stands, owing to let us appear clean if we are not or can its forcible phraseology. But we can nake reference to it, and do so in this column now in the hope that the Government might beed and act. 'Pater,' after reading an article in the CHINA MAIL ON the clergy, felt that we should write to the Government do

We have watched for some time the growth of the evil of which 'Pater' complains and we have been alarmed at the proportions which it has assumed. Others have written t the press about it, however, and we have waited and watched with interest to see if the Government would take any action to wipe out the cankerous growth. The highest individual score made in the ticipating? We believe we are right in test matches by the Australians this year is Armstrong's 66. Not one century has been registered against England's trundling, which itself is a high compliment to the bowling, andnot forgetting an important factorthe fielding. In fielding, both teams have displayed keenness and to this in measure is due the comparative smallness of the scores made. To sum up, the fourth test match should be won by England, and with it the supremacy of Police investigations sometimes lead to humourous and unexpected results. The following is a gem from the diary of an astute member of the detective force. A Chinese merchant had reported that his safe, in which he kept money and valuable papers, had been opened by a false key and some of its contents removed. The detective thought that the merchant's own key might have been used and asked him where he kept it. 'On my girdle,' was the reply. But perhaps you sometimes take the girdle off, suggested the officer. When you go to bed, for instance'. 'No,' replied the Chinaman, 'it is always there,', 'What about when you bath ?" asked the detec tive, thinking he had cornered the Chinaman: 'Well,' replied the Chinaman 'it is never taken off, I seldom bath'. The report turned out to be a false one. Last month-owing to certain prosecutions directed against shipmasters for anchoring their vessels in Junk Bay when approaching Hongkong after dark, or on other occasions—we drew attention to the admirable anchorage afforded in this bay and also to the fact that, though Junk Bay was not a port within the meaning of the Act, shipmasters had anchored there night on many occasions without hindrance and contended that the shipmasters were unjustly treated by being precluded from taking refuge in the bay at night instead of attempting to pass through the narrow passage at Lycemoon. The reasons which the authorities took shelter behind were also published. and we concluded by expressing a hope that the Governor might see his way to accede to the shipmastors' request allowing them to continue to use the bay as a safe anchorage should the necessity arise. We are pleased to note, in the current issue of the Government Gazette, that the authorities have been moving in the matter and that the Governor has directed that Junk Bay be added The effect of this notification is to wipe away all the harassing restrictions which heretofore prevented the shipmasters from taking full advantage of the anchorage afforded by the Bay. Junk Bay is now as open as the harbour itself, and ship-masters are at liberty to anchor within its limits as often as they think fit. The action of the

A daring case of burglary occurred at Temple Street, Yaumati, early this morning. The burglar was a coolie, who was formerly employed at an aerated water shop in Temple Street, and who no doubt knew where to find the money and valuables kept in the shop. -Some time during the morping he forced an entrance to the shop and honexed the money-drawer, in which there was coin of various denominations to the value of $428.
